Sasha Dudding is a litigation associate in the New York office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher.

Prior to joining Gibson Dunn, Sasha served as a law clerk to the Honorable Eric N. Vitaliano of the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of New York from 2020 to 2021. From 2021 to 2023, she was the E.W. Scripps Legal Fellow at the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, where she advocated for journalists in freedom of information, court access, libel, and First Amendment cases, counseled clients on newsgathering issues, and provided legal trainings and prepublication review.

She received her Juris Doctor in 2020 from Yale Law School. There, she served as the Forum, Features and Book Reviews Executive Editor of the Yale Law Journal, where her Note, Spinning Secrets: The Dangers of Selective Declassification, 130 Yale L.J. 708 (2021), was published. She was also a member of the Media Freedom and Information Access Clinic and an executive editor of the Yale Journal of Law & Technology.

Prior to law school, Sasha was a Project Analyst at Mintz Levin in Boston. She graduated summa cum laude from Dartmouth College in 2015 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Government.

Sasha is admitted to practice in the State of New York, the State of Connecticut, and before the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.
